BPA&O Collaboration with One-Stop Centers, Part II

Summary
Significant and fundamental changes in how career development and support services are provided to individuals with disabilities have been fostered with the passage of the Workforce Investment Act of 1998 and the Ticket to Work and Work Incentives Improvement Act of 1999. All of these reforms focus on the principles of self-determination and empowerment, individualized and flexible service delivery, full and easy access to services, removal of financial disincentives, and access to training and supports so that individuals can reach their full potential.

The One-Stop system has been envisioned and developed as one mechanism for achieving these goals. Benefits counseling is a critical service component to any employment service system for people with disabilities, and the development of an agreement between a BPA&O and One-Stop Career Center takes the first step toward that development. A strong and mutual relationship between the Benefits Specialists and the One-Stop staff is a second major step toward implementation of a customer stream environment) has increased customer base and improved access to services.

Internet Resources
Social Security Administration:
- www.ssa.gov/work/
- www.doleta.gov/usworkforce/onestop/

Publications:
- www.communityinclusion.org/publications/
- www.edi.cornell.edu
- www.communityinclusion.org/publications/

Endnotes:
2 P.L. 105-220
3 64 FR 9403-9404 (February 25, 1999).
4 64 FR 9403-9404 (February 25, 1999).
5 20 CFR 662.100(a)
6 Section 134(c) of WIA (29 U.S.C.2864(c)); 20 CFR 662.100(c).

Contact Information
Cornell University
School of Industrial and Labor Relations
Employment and Disability Institute
201 ILR Extension
Ithaca, New York 14853-3901

t. 607-255-7727
f. 607-255-2763 tty 607-255-2891
ilr edi@cornell.edu

www.edi.cornell.edu

Promising Practices
Creating Model Partnerships to Promote Employment of People with Disabilities

BPA&O Collaboration with One-Stop Centers, Part II

Partnering with Disability Program Navigators:
Employment Resources, Inc. (Wisconsin)
Connie Ferrell, Director of Training and Technical Assistance, WISC
JoAnne M. Malloy, Training and Organizational Development Specialist, WISC

Background
The Benefits Planning, Assistance and Outreach (BPA&O) program, established as part of the Ticket to Work and Work Incentive Improvement Act of 1999, has created a system of specialists in every state who provide individualized benefits and work incentive counseling services to social security beneficiaries. The BPA&Os are operated by a variety of types of organizations, including centers for independent living, state vocational rehabilitation agencies, private, non-profit vocational providers, among others. In order to reach a diverse population of individuals with disabilities who are interested in employment and to cover their geographic areas, the BPA&O projects reach out to state, local, private and public vocational agencies and schools.

The goal of the Benefits Planning, Assistance and Outreach program is to better enable SSA’s beneficiaries with disabilities to make informed choices about work. The BPA&Os provide work incentives planning and assistance to SSA’s beneficiaries with disabilities; conduct outreach efforts to those beneficiaries and their families who are potentially eligible to participate in Federal or State work incentives programs and; work in cooperation with Federal, State, and private agencies and nonprofit organizations that serve beneficiaries with disabilities.
The U.S. Department of Labor (DOL) has also undertaken major reform with the passage of the Workforce Investment Act (WIA) of 1998. The WIA requires states to streamline services for eligible individuals by integrating multiple employment and training programs at the “street level” through the creation of One-Stop Career Centers. According to DOL, eligible individuals include individuals with disabilities and other persons with multiple barriers to employment. In order to make services available to all customers, the One-Stop system must be accessible to persons with disabilities.

The One-Stop delivery system is envisioned as a system under which One-Stop “partners” responsible for administering separate workforce investment, educational, and other human resource programs and funding streams collaborate to create a seamless system of service delivery that will enhance access to the program's services and improve long-term employment outcomes for individuals receiving assistance. The system must include at least one comprehensive physical center, that must provide core services, in each local area and must provide access to other programs and activities carried out by One-Stop partners.

The One-Stop system has been identified by the Social Security Administration (SSA) as an important element in the development and implementation of the initiatives set forth in the Ticket to Work and Work Incentives Improvement Act, and streamlined access to services (WIA), the Social Security Administration, and the U.S. Department of Labor have collaborated to pilot a system of “Disability Navigator” positions in several states. The Disability Navigators assist One-Stop customers with disabilities to find employment-related supports and services both within the One-Stop and in the community.

Collaboration Increases the Customer Base

Employment Resources Inc. (ERI), a BPA&O project in Wisconsin, serves individuals throughout a predominantly rural, 35 county area. The Disability Navigator, whose main office resides in the Oshkosh Workforce Development Center, also serves a 7 county rural area. (There are currently 8 Navigators in the Oshkosh service area). Collaboration between the two programs began when a BPA&O staff at ERI contacted a Disability Navigator in their service area and agreed to collaborate with ERI BPA&O staff to provide an outreach seminar on work incentives and local agency services for people in the Oshkosh area of Wisconsin. Together they developed a flyer to advertise the event and mailed it to over 800 current SSA beneficiaries and/or meet with individual beneficiaries/recipients of Social Security. ERI is learning that by meeting a One-Stop customer who is a new BPA&O referral together with the Disability Navigator (who already has a relationship with that customer), the Benefit Specialists can build trust quicker, which increases the chance that the individual follows up with a Benefits Analysis and other services. It also increases the working knowledge each professional has of the other’s content area.

In addition, the BPA&O project and One-Stop Centers are placing flyers in places like disability newsletters, at the Social Security offices, etc., to target services directly to beneficiaries and customers with disabilities. This differs from previous outreach activities that have been targeted towards human service agencies, with the hope that they would refer their constituency for benefit planning services. A second collaborative venture that ERI is involved with is occurring in the town of Racine, WI where a jointly-sponsored outreach seminar was held that targeted human service agency personnel. Racine is part of the rural 35-county service area of ERI’s contract. As the Benefits Specialists have few natural connections in this area, the Disability Navigator’s previous networking in prior job functions were very helpful in targeting participants for this seminar and for introducing participants to ERI’s BPA&O services.

The third collaborative opportunity currently being planned involves targeting transition aged youth. One of the Disability Navigators is well networked with schools in a specific county. There are plans for the Disability Navigator and the Benefits Specialists to set up presentations in each school by providing 2 short seminars in each (one in the daytime and one in the evening, to meet family scheduling needs), which will be jointly sponsored and presented.

Moving Forward

The collaboration between the One-Stops system and some BPA&O programs have been so successful that it is recommended that BPA&O agencies seek out and begin to work with One-Stop Centers in their service areas. It is further recommended that the BPA&Os and One-Stops use this collaboration as an opportunity to bring together all of the primary stakeholders including Vocational Rehabilitation, SSA Work Incentive Liaisons, Protection and Advocacy for Beneficiaries of Social Security staff (PABSS), and others to explain their services and network with beneficiaries.

Benefits Planning, Assistance and Outreach services are an integral piece of the job placement process for individuals with disabilities, ideally occurring as one of the very first steps. Benefits planning is a very individualized and time intensive service, often spanning several months or more. Although the BPA&O / One-Stop collaborations highlighted in this two-part series have been very successful, there is not enough capacity to collaborate with all the One-Stops and to provide benefits counseling to all the customers with disabilities. More collaboration between SSA and DOL at the federal and state levels would help facilitate the growth and expansion of benefits planning and related services in One-Stops.